Founded in 1887, Clark University is an exceptionally diverse, socially engaged, small research university with a strong liberal arts core. Critical to success in today's world, Clark students gain relevant competencies including critical thinking, resilience, and the ability to tackle complex challenges. Each year, over 2,000 undergraduate and graduate students receive degrees from Clark and secure positions with corporations, government, and nonprofit organizations. Clark is built for the kind of unconventional and independent thinking that allows us to value the imperfect and navigate the unexpected. We move through the world with confidence and curiosity, eager to discover what awaits and emboldened to act when our moment arises. Clark University's mission is to educate undergraduate and graduate students to be imaginative and contributing citizens of the world, and to advance the frontiers of knowledge and understanding through rigorous scholarship and creative effort. The Clark Experience prepares students to be creative, imaginative, and bold thinkers who are ready to challenge convention and change our world. Clark brings together the exceptional education students receive with a thoughtfully integrated system of career preparation, skill building, hands-on learning, wellness resources, and community connections. Clark is one of only 40 schools nationwide featured in Loren Pope's book Colleges that Change Lives, based on its commitment to undergraduate research, diversity, civic values, social change, and its unique program of liberal studies. Also notable, Clark is ranked by The Princeton Review as No. 16 Best Schools for Making an Impact and No. 3 Undergraduate Game Design program in the world. The University hosts a virtual career fair in October and an on-campus all majors career fair in March. For questions about recruiting, please contact the Career Connections Center (CServices@clarku.edu).

As the first all-graduate institution in the U.S., Clark has a long history of excellence in graduate education. And for more than 65 years, Clark's School of Professional Studies has strengthened that reputation by delivering relevant, rigorous academic programs for professional learners and recent college graduates seeking to advance in their careers. With students from more than 90 countries and partnerships with 150 nonprofits and businesses around the world, SPS recognizes that today's classroom spans the world. Clark believes strongly in the power of applied knowledge — learning by doing. The SPS curriculum is firmly grounded in practical application and hands-on opportunities. SPS faculty are exceptional educators with experience teaching at top institutions around the world. They also are working professionals, and deeply connected to current trends and advances in their fields. This practical approach gives our students a head start in translating classroom knowledge into on-the-job impact.

Clark University, School of Climate, Environment and Society

950 Main Street, Worcester, MA

Sharon Hanna, Director Career Development and External Relations

shanna@clarku.edu 508-793-7454

Opening this Fall 2025, Clark's new School of Climate, Environment, and Society is a bold and exciting response to the world's most pressing call to action. CES builds on Clark's long legacy of climate-related work in the natural sciences, social sciences, and humanities — accelerating the discovery of human-focused, community-centered solutions. Students and graduates untangle the interconnected climate, environmental, societal, and economic crises, and develop solutions. Our faculty come from across the university, contributing deep expertise in conservation, earth science, economics, geography and GIS, sustainability and social justice, and urban issues.

Founded in 1843, College of the Holy Cross is a highly selective, four-year college of approximately 3,200 students. Ranked among the nation's leading four-year liberal arts colleges, Holy Cross offers an academically challenging and personally fulfilling education in the Jesuit tradition. The Holy Cross experience is characterized by an emphasis on open exploration and far-ranging curiosity that inspires our students to ask more of themselves — academically, spiritually, and in their personal development. Holy Cross graduates go on to lead meaningful lives that marry passion and purpose in positions ranging from members of Congress and leading scientific researchers to CEOs in the business and nonprofit sectors. Together, our alumni constitute a loyal family—and powerful global network—of successful professionals and engaged citizens. Employers are invited to post jobs, internships, and recruiting events free of charge to Holy Cross students via Handshake

Since 1839, when Cyrus Peirce closed each of his lessons at what was then The Normal School with the phrase “live to the truth,” the Framingham State community has embodied this motto. We live to the truth by upholding the University's mission of providing affordable, high-quality education to all qualified students, and maintaining a commitment to student involvement, engagement, and academic excellence. While we are proud of our roots as a teachers' college, we have grown far beyond them. Framingham State is a world-class university. Our students and alumni are making waves in the fashion industry, designing nutrition plans for professional athletes, writing for major media and news organizations, and working for Fortune 500 companies right here in Framingham. Fall fairs will be virtual and in collaboration with 5 other MA State Universities: for details, employers can visit our site and reach out to careerservices@framingham.edu to be added to our invitation list: <https://www.framingham.edu/campus-life/center-student-experience-career-development/career-development/employers>

Nichols College transforms today's students into tomorrow's leaders through a dynamic, career-focused business and professional education. Since its founding in 1815, Nichols has inspired its students to succeed in their careers and in life. The College's innovative academic programs combine business, liberal arts, technology, and experiential learning to prepare professionals for the workplace of tomorrow. Consulting projects, research initiatives, Bloomberg certification, a student-managed investment fund, and a strong foundation in data science and emerging technologies are just some of the opportunities available to our students. In 2023, the Nichols College School of Business earned accreditation from the prestigious Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB), the longest serving global accrediting body for business schools and the largest business education network connecting learners, educators, and businesses worldwide. High-impact, hands-on learning experiences are embedded throughout the curriculum. Employers are welcome to visit our Handshake site to post internships and jobs, and to register for events such as our two annual career fairs held in February and September.

Founded in 1865, WPI was one of the nation's earliest technological universities. At WPI learning has always been about combining theory and practice. Our multi-dimensional approach to education yields more than just graduates; it helps create innovators, inventors, entrepreneurs and most important, leaders. Our academic departments offer more than 50 undergraduate and graduate degree programs leading to bachelor's, master's and PhD degrees, as well as an array of professional certificates. WPI students work side by side with faculty members at the apex of their fields in world-class research facilities. Our professors are committed researchers and scholars who bring their love of research into their classrooms and labs and give students countless opportunities to get involved and solve real-world problems. From the Great Problems Seminars, to the Humanities and Arts project, to the Global Perspective Program, WPI students are tackling some of the most critical problems facing our world today and having life-changing experiences while they're learning. We don't just believe in making the world a better place through science, technology, the arts and humanities – we actually do it. Worcester State University offers more than 60 undergraduate majors and minors, along with a wide range of master's degrees and graduate programs. Students gain a strong academic foundation while developing the skills needed to succeed in today's workforce, from critical thinking and research to communication and leadership. The Career Development Center (CDC) empowers students and alumni to achieve their professional goals while connecting employers with well-prepared candidates across disciplines. Employers are invited to partner with us by posting full-time jobs, internships, and events on our platforms. Throughout the year, we provide multiple opportunities to engage with students, including: Career Conversations – on-campus sessions where employers meet directly with students in a casual, accessible format; Panels, workshops, and networking events – designed to support student career readiness while deepening employer connections; and Annual All-Inclusive Career Fair (April) – our signature campus-wide event that brings together employers from all industries to recruit Worcester State students and alumni. We welcome partnerships that strengthen student outcomes and provide employers with access to top talent. For more information, please contact the Career Development Center.
